Cookie Policy

1. Why November First uses cookies and how

November First uses cookies when November First's website is visited. Therefore, November First wants to inform the visitor about the cookies used to ensure that an informed choice can be made in relation to the visitor's continued acceptance of the cookies that November First applies.

To provide the best possible experience on the November First website, November First sometimes places small files, also called cookies, on the visitor's computer, smartphone, or other electronic devices. A cookie is a text file that allows November First to distinguish between different visitors to the website.

November First uses cookies as a helping tool on the website to optimize the user's experience and accustom content. Cookies can be used to collect analytical data about the visitors' activity, manage what visitors read about on the website as well as what visitors click on, and whether contact forms, customer applications or the like are filled out. Cookies are placed to detect malfunctions on the website. In addition, cookies are placed from third-party services, like for example Google, LinkedIn and Facebook. In this way, November First can see which videos visitors click on and watch.

Cookies can be session cookies or persistent cookies that can make use of various technologies. Please note that cookies are renewed at each visit. Regarding the information collected, it is only stored for the period permitted by law, and November First deletes all cookies when they are no longer necessary. The period depends on the nature of the information and the reason for storage.

Session cookies are associated with the current visit to November Firsts website and are automatically deleted when the visitor closes the web browser. Persistent cookies will be stored on the visitor's device. Persistent cookies will delete themselves after a certain period of time but will be renewed every time the visitor visit the website.

2. Consent

By accepting our use of cookies, in addition to the necessary cookies, visitors hereby consent to November First's use of cookies described below in section 4. Visitors have the opportunity to change or withdraw their consent. For more information, please refer to section 5.

3. Processing of personal data when using cookies

November First's use of cookies may include the processing of visitors' personal data. November First therefore recommends that visitors also read our Privacy Policy. The Privacy Policy describes November First's processing of personal data and visitors' rights.

4. Types of cookies

Necessary cookies: These are necessary to enable visitors to move around on the website and make use of the website's features.

Preference cookies: These types of cookies collect information about how visitors use the website and can be used to improve November First's website. In this way, for example, November First can analyze the traffic on the website. In some cases, personally identifiable data is also stored in the form of IP address, but where possible, this is turned off.

Functional cookies: This type of cookies allows the website to remember the different choices that visitors make, with which November First can see, for example, which articles visitors read and what visitors click on. The information collected by these kinds of cookies cannot track visitors' activities on other websites.

Targeted cookies: Such cookies are used to see, for example, how many times visitors visit November First's website and whether visitors interact with specific elements of the website.

Unclassified cookies: There are cookies November First is in the process of classifying together with the providers of the individual cookies.

If a visitor does not want these cookies, the visitors can block them via the web browser or limit them via the selection in the pop-up. November First collects these cookies to improve the visitors' experience and be able to provide a better service.

5. How to delete or change cookies

If a visitor wishes to opt out of the cookies on November First's website, this can be done individually in the browser settings, or by choosing which cookies to allow in the pop-up you meet when November First's website is visited. Visitors should be aware that the website may not function optimally if cookies are deleted or blocked.

It depends on the visitor's browser how cookie-settings are changed. If several browsers are used, the visitor must delete or change in each browser they use. Click on the relevant link to see how:
